

DISCovering Me™

DISC for Self Report and Guide

Report For: Sarah Sample

Style: SC/SC

Focus: Social

Date: 3/11/2016

Table of Contents

Part 1 – DISC for Self Report	3
Your General Characteristics	4
Your Motivations, Wants and Needs	7
Your Communication Preferences	8
Your Potential Areas for Improvement	9
DISC Graphs Interpretation Tips	10
Word Sketch: Natural Style	11
Part 2 – DISC for Self Guide	12
Understanding DISC	13
Adapting Your Style.....	14
Modifying your Directness and Openness.....	16
Collaborating with the DISC Styles	17
Developing Character Virtues	18
The Four DISC Styles Strength Virtues.....	19
Virtue Definitions	20
Developing Your Leadership Virtues	21
Developing Your Optimism.....	22
Developing Optimism in the Four DISC Styles.....	24
Reference Materials and Resources	25
Disclaimer	26

DISC is a Life-Energy model that has been proven with over millions of users to be an accurate, objective and non-judgmental way to understand why people do what they do. Not psychological or analytical, it simply gives the “people-literate” person a way to “read” and identify which of the four major behavioral style types a person is – Dominant, Influence, Steadiness, or Compliant – and also appreciate the Needs – Emotions and Fears that drives their style and gives them their strengths and thus the type of results they get. We have all four styles available to use, but over time, we learn how to get more of what is important to us by using certain behaviors more than others.

Use this report for self-DIScovery and clarity about why you do what you do. Once you can see and understand your own behavior, you'll recognize which styles you clearly are NOT and begin to appreciate what those other styles bring to any team. You'll learn how to make communication easier and how to bring out the best in others. Your inner and outer DISC graph is displayed throughout this report and included is an introduction to the subject of VIRTUES and how these all fit in together to make communication and great relationships with others your greatest success! Enjoy the journey!

This assessment is recommended for youth aged 13 years and over.

Part 1 – DISC for Self Report

Introduction:

Congratulations! Here is your DISCovering Me™ DISC for Self Report and Guide to Understanding Yourself and Others.

For centuries, humans have sought to understand what causes individuals to behave the way they do. Many of us have a deep desire to answer the question: “Who am I?”

With this personalized DISC report and the accompanying Guide, you now have the answer to understanding “who you are”, and the tools to help you become a better you in all the situations you find yourself in. It will guide and strengthen your ability to be more flexible and adaptable when you are with people, who act and think differently, thus improving your relationships.

Use this report for:

- Tips and strategies to help you use more of your natural strengths;
- Overcoming behavioral limitations and for getting the results you seek;
- Learning how to bring out the natural Character Virtues you already have but may not have thought about or recognized before and;
- How to think more optimistically.

This DISC for Self Report identifies the patterns of observable behaviors each style exhibits. Knowing your primary style makes it easier to recognize and relate to the differences in other people. This model is simple, practical, and easy to remember and use.

BEHAVIORAL STYLES

The DISC Personal Profiling System focuses on patterns of observable behaviors using scales of directness and openness that each style exhibits as outlined in this table. Once you can recognize the tendency, it is easier to anticipate a person’s style so you can ask the right questions and relate better to them! Enjoy creating relationships and getting the results that come from being a “PeopleSmart” people-literate person.

STYLE	TENDENCIES
Dominance	Tends to be direct and guarded
Influence	Tends to be direct and open
Steadiness	Tends to be indirect and open
Conscientious	Tends to be indirect and guarded

Your General Characteristics

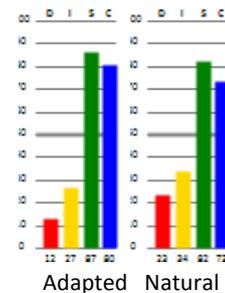

The narration below serves as a general overview of your behavioral tendencies. It sets the stage for this report and provides a framework for understanding - and reflecting on - your results. We've occasionally provided some coaching ideas so that you can leverage your behavioral strengths whenever possible to maximize your personal success and happiness.

You demonstrate extremely high attention to detail as you strive for perfection. You strive to make things as high-quality as possible and may be disappointed when things turn out just "pretty good." Few people on the team have the ability to attend to details and to follow through the way you do.

You tend to judge others by objective standards, and prefer to be evaluated by specific criteria, preferably provided in writing. For you, things are more clear and well-defined when written down. When evaluation time comes, your preference is a list of specific criteria, or a rubric that is specific and unambiguous.

Your score pattern indicates that you tend to maintain a keen awareness of time. You tend to be on time or early for appointments, and expect the same consideration of your time from others. It annoys you when certain people are perpetually late, or when meetings drag on with no assigned time to end.

You tend to evaluate others by how well they implement and execute procedures, standards, and quality action. You hold others accountable to the same high standards that you maintain for yourself. Those who demonstrate these high standards (as you know, they are somewhat rare) are individuals that you will tend to hold in esteem.

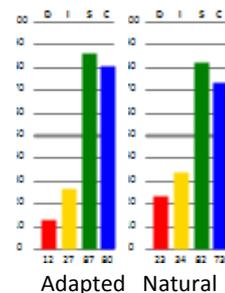

Sarah, people who score like you may tend to get bogged down in details during the decision-making process, thinking that there may be more information forthcoming that might impact the choice. It's true that there will almost always be more information available if we continue to wait; however, there is also a time at which the collection of data must stop and the decision must be made. Be aware of this when facing a series of data-driven decisions.

You take calculated, educated risks only after a thoughtful analysis of the facts and data, and after you have examined all options and potential outcomes. This is a strength. However, when the team has a deadline, you could be perceived as a bottleneck to the process. Not maliciously, but because you want to analyze the facts and data and determine all possible outcomes as a result of a decision. Be aware of this, and be prepared to abbreviate the analysis a bit when the clock is ticking.

Your response pattern indicates that you tend to hide your emotions. You are generally quiet in a group unless asked for input, or if the topic is one of high importance to you. Our advice is to move out of that comfort zone and be a bit more verbal. It will benefit the team, because many will not have considered the issues as deeply as you have. Your input will raise the quality of the conversation. And you will benefit by being perceived as a more open and interactive person.

You like your space to be neat and well-organized. When the workspace is clean and clutter-free, you are more able to focus clearly on the project at hand.

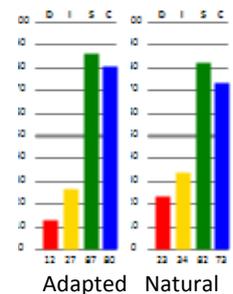

Your talents and the virtues that accompany your natural strengths are how others experience and remember you! Typically, we feel the most competent when we are in jobs and with people that bring out our best. Knowing our strengths and letting others know what types of things we are best at and what they can count on us for, brings harmony and happiness to any team.

Consider how you have used these strengths in the past and what you want to share with others so you can work together for mutual benefit. Which are your two favorite strengths from this list? Give examples of how you use them when interacting with others to accomplish a task.

Your Natural Strengths:

(As shown on the Natural DISC Graph)

- You may be sought after by other members of the team because of your complete knowledge of processes and procedures.
- You are a strong guardian of quality-control standards and procedures.
- You take your responsibilities seriously and exercise your authority in a sincere and conscientious manner.
- You are patient in working with others on the team and demonstrating detailed methods for completing a project.
- You provide an objective, reality-focused view of systems, procedures, and organizational operations.
- You maintain a high degree of accuracy while keeping an eye toward project deadlines.

Your Work Style Tendencies:

(As shown on the Adapted DISC Graph)

- You set high performance standards for yourself and others, and expect everybody to meet those standards.
- On work-related projects, you tend to be restrained and reticent with your emotions. You may not be openly verbal at a team or organizational meeting unless asked for input, or if the topic is of high personal importance.
- You are highly conscientious and can be relied on to follow through on detailed projects and complex assignments.
- You demonstrate a strong need for perfection and detail orientation.
- You need to feel well-informed regarding specific details related to your area of authority and responsibility.
- Naturally time-sensitive, you keep a careful eye on the organizational clock and maintain a keen awareness of timelines.
- You will take calculated, educated risks only after a thoughtful analysis of the facts and data, and after you have examined all options and potential outcomes.

Your Motivations, Wants and Needs

This list identifies the types of projects and situations you may find most motivating, especially when it allows you to do your best work. Because people are typically motivated by those things they want and need the most, their behaviors reflect this. Each style has different needs. Under stress, some like being active while others prefer quiet time alone, and others prefer social time around other people with similar interests. Each person's behavior points to those things they like and need, so the more fully your natural, instinctive needs are met, the easier it is for you to perform at your best!

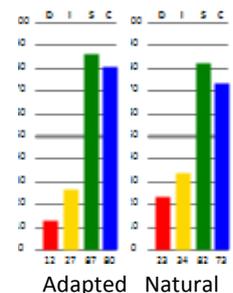

Identify and make a note of two of your favorite motivators and two of your most important needs and share them with the others you live, work or study with.

You Tend to Be Motivated By:

- A home life that is supportive of work demands.
- Appreciation for the competence and work ethic demonstrated over the long haul.
- High quality control standards that are respected by all members of the organization, not just by a few people.
- The assurance that changes are made thoughtfully, carefully, and only when proven to be necessary.
- Tasks which are completed the right way the first time, so that errors don't have to be corrected later.
- Having sufficient time to adjust to change, so as not to disrupt systems or processes.
- Complete explanations of systems and processes that impact the work environment.

People With Your Style Preferences Tend to Need:

- Sufficient time for effective planning, especially prior to change.
- A method to be introduced to new groups of people or business associations.
- An increased urgency to take advantage of opportunities.
- Increased authority to delegate routine tasks and procedures to a reliable and trustworthy support staff, especially when the work culture is under pressure.
- Options for increasing the efficiency of certain methods or procedures.
- Job descriptions which are presented clearly (preferably in writing), with no ambiguities.
- Reassurance for taking appropriate and calculated risks.

Your Communication Preferences

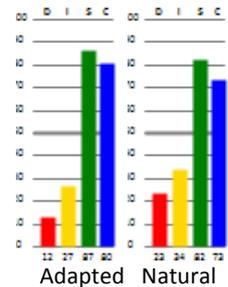

Identify which one of the following suggestions you particularly identify with. Then share it with those others who interact with you so they can understand and become aware of your communication preferences. Ask others to share their preferences with you. Place a tick next to the two most important Do's and Don'ts for you when others communicate with you. Share these with those you live, work or study with.

When Communicating with Sarah, DO:

- List pros and cons to suggestions you make.
- Outline individual tasks and responsibilities in writing.
- Ask "how"-oriented questions to draw her opinions.
- Be candid, open, and patient.
- Show sincere interest in her as a person.
- Be sensitive to possible areas of disagreement, she may not be verbal about them.
- Be certain that the information you have is credible.

When Communicating with Sarah, DON'T:

- Make decisions for her.
- Be rude, abrupt, or too fast-paced in your delivery.
- Fail to follow through. If you say you're going to do something, do it.
- Leave an idea or plan without backup support.
- Offer promises that you can't keep.
- Be vague about what's expected of the group.
- Leave things up in the air, or decide by chance.

Your Potential Areas for Improvement

Everyone has struggles, limitations and weaker traits in some areas more than others. After all, it is like the front of the hand and the back of the hand. You cannot see both sides at the same time! It's the same with strengths and weaknesses.

Each strength has its equal and opposite weakness. For example, if your strength is in easily making friends, your weakness may be with tasks involving details. In other words, when your focus is on people, you cannot focus on details at the same time! Learn what your strengths are and become aware of what traits and behaviors you need to develop for using in any situation.

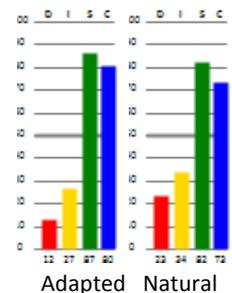

Identify and maximize the strengths you have. However know that strengths can become weaknesses when they are over-used or under-used. For example, directness is a strength in certain environments, but overused or when working with naturally conscientious, or cautious style types, that strength may irritate or even offend these people. Be aware of the impact your style has on each of the other style types so you have no "blind spots" as to how your behavior affects others.

Ask yourself:

- Which two are my most important areas to improve in?
- Who could you share this insight with? Stay open and aware!

Potential "Blind Spots" - Areas for Awareness and Improvement:

- You may be overly dependent on a few people who share a similar focus, leading to the exclusion of others on the team who could provide valuable input.
- You may sometimes use facts, figures, and details as a "security blanket" to avoid confrontation or hostility.
- You could benefit from a greater degree of self-confidence and an increased sense of urgency to accomplish activities on a tighter timeline.
- You may tend to spend more time than necessary on certain details, for fear of being seen as underprepared.
- You may sometimes overthink or overexert yourself on standard or routine procedures.
- You could demonstrate a bit more spontaneity and take yourself a bit less seriously.
- You may be too tightly bound to established procedures and tradition, even as more efficient and effective methods become available.

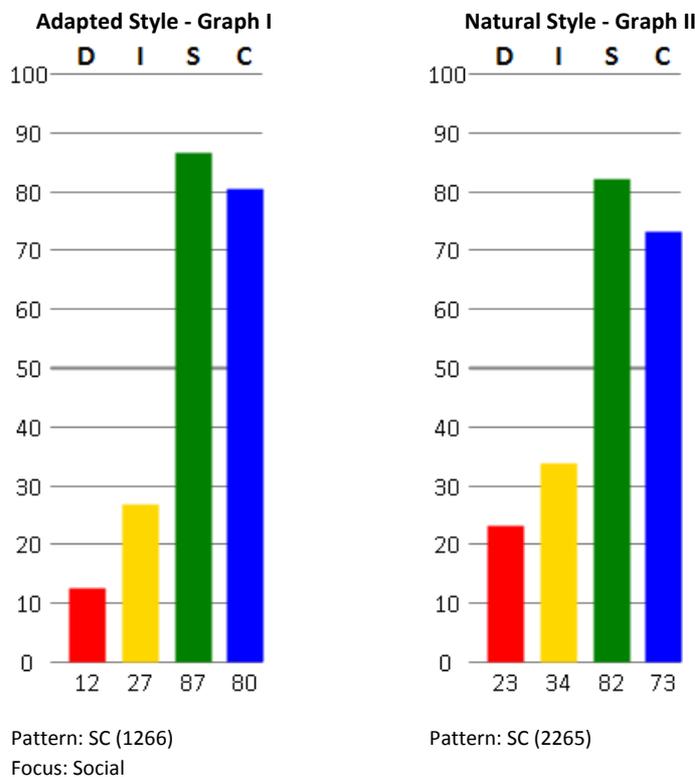

DISC Graphs Interpretation Tips

DISC Graphs are a quick way to “read” a person’s primary style and to see how others view you:

Graph I is a picture of your Adapted Style – the one you bring to the role you are in. (Or it may be to meet the expectations of others.) You perceive yourself as most often needing to be a SC style in your primary focus. This graph may change when you change roles or situations.

Graph II shows you in your Natural Style - YOU as you are ‘when no one is looking’ is represented on your “natural” graph. This SC style seems to work best for you when at home and relaxed. This is your instinctive, “default” style when you are under pressure as well, however!

SIMILAR GRAPH PATTERNS? or 30% SHIFT: When both graphs look similar, it’s a WYSIWYG - “What You See Is What You Get” – meaning you are pretty consistent at home and in a role - your inner feelings and outer behavior is consistent. But if you have a shift, up or down, of 30% or more, especially in the “I”nfluence or “S”teadiness factors, ask why – if it is necessary or not for you to be shifting!

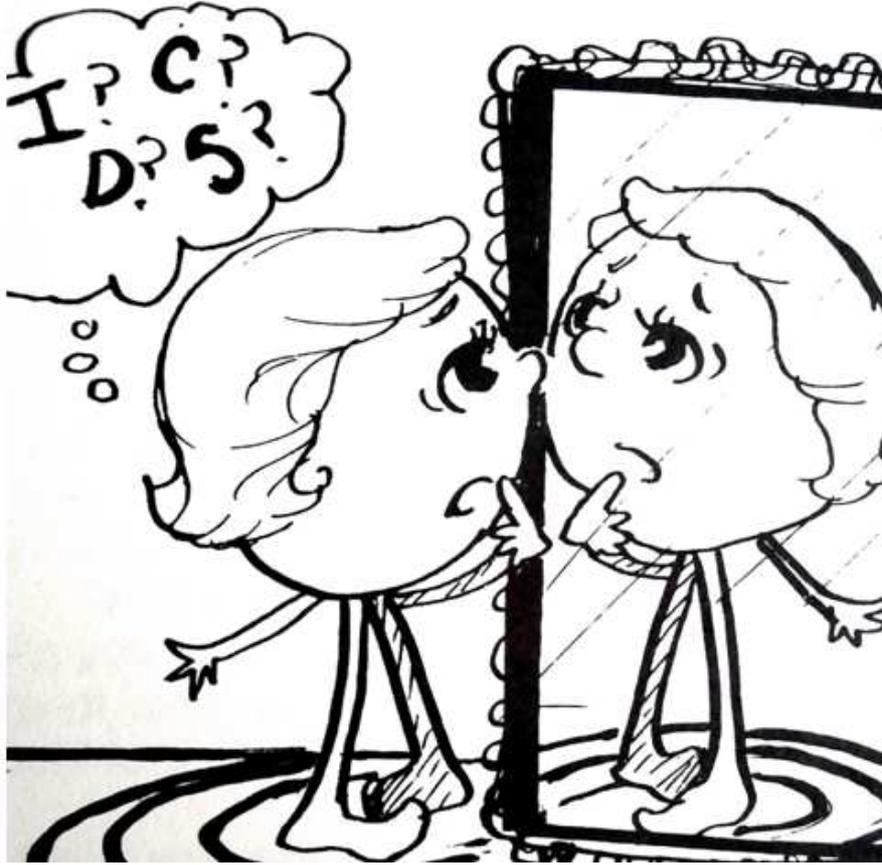

Your DISC Graphs are another way to describe behavior and understand people – starting with “yourself”. The height of each graph point can be used to reference descriptive words on the Word Sketch Page. These are HOW the energy you use in the four dimensions of life: D-Problems, I-People, S-Pace, or C-Procedures influences your personal behavioral style. The numbers on the left and the four number sequences underneath each graph show the amount of energy you invest. If you are a “High” D, I, S, or C, it means that point is anything over 50%. The four numbers at the bottom (e.g. 3416) refers to segment numbers from the following Word Sketch page and describe how you approach each segment.

WORD SKETCH of Graph II - NATURAL Style

This Word Sketch represents your Natural DISC Graph II - how you are when you are “at home” or relaxed – as well as how you act under sudden pressure. Note the words highlighted by blocks of color are reflecting how high, medium or low the energy is that you typically invest in activities relating to each column... (D)ominating Problems, (I)nfluencing People, (S)teadying the Pace of Activity, and (C)omplying to Procedures. Use the highlighted blocks of words and describe how this style works for you. If you need or want to change something so you can get different results, which words on this chart would you use more - or less often? Behavior is always a choice. If your natural style is working for you, keep it. If not, use this chart to choose and practice new behaviors for getting different results.

	D	I	S	C
DISC Focus	Problems / Tasks	People	Pace (or Environment)	Procedures
Needs	Challenges to solve, Authority	Social relationships, Friendly environment	Systems, Teams, Stable environment	Rules to follow, Data to analyze
Emotion	Decisive, risk-taker	Optimistic, trust others	Patience, stabilizer	Cautious, careful decisions
Fears	... being taken advantage of/lack of control	... being left out, loss of social approval	... sudden change/loss of stability and security	... being criticized/loss of accuracy and quality
6	argumentative daring demanding decisive domineering egocentric	emotional enthusiastic gregarious impulsive optimistic persuasive	calming loyal patient peaceful serene team person	accurate conservative exacting fact-finder precise systematic
5	adventurous risk-taker direct forceful	charming influential sociable trusting	consistent cooperative possessive relaxed	conscientious courteous focused high standards
4	assertive competitive determined self-reliant	confident friendly generous poised	composed deliberate stable steady	analytical neat sensitive tactful
3	calculated risks moderate questioning unassuming	controlled discriminating rational reflective	alert eager flexible mobile	own person self assured opinionated persistent
2	mild seeks consensus unobtrusive weighs pro/con	contemplative factual logical retiring	discontented energetic fidgety impetuous	autonomous independent firm stubborn
1	agreeing cautious conservative contemplative modest restrained	introspective pessimistic quiet pensive reticent suspicious	active change-oriented fault-finding impatient restless spontaneous	arbitrary defiant fearless obstinate rebellious sarcastic

Part 2 – DISC for Self Guide

You are perfect just the way you are!

Understanding DISC

DISC is an acronym (short form) - D stands for DOMINANCE, I stands for INFLUENCE, S stands for STEADINESS and C stands for COMPLIANCE. It is a four-dimensional model of human behavior that is observable. Observable behavior is what people see you doing and only 10% of your behavior can be seen, 90% cannot be seen and is made of your mindset, emotions and beliefs. So what three things drive your behavior? Your mindset, emotions and beliefs drive your behavior.

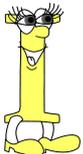

There is no good or bad style to have as it depends on the situation. AND... DISC is not about giving you a label. It just gives you a way to better understand yourself and others based on what the needs are of each of the four DISC styles. Or what it is you and others like to focus on in life:

- D styles like to focus on PROBLEMS to solve
- I styles like to focus on PEOPLE to interact with
- S styles like to focus on the PACE of the environment
- C styles like to focus on PROCEDURES to follow

Communicating with the four DISC styles – What to know about them:

D's are fast-paced, like to get results be in control and are independent. They fear losing control and so tell them “what” the big picture is and what is in it for them! Don't give them too much detail, just the bottom line facts.

I's are fast-paced, like to focus on people and like to get involved. They fear rejection so be warm and friendly to them. Don't do all the talking. Ask them “what” questions.

S's are slower-paced, like a steady pace and also like people. They dislike sudden change and loss of security so give them time to complete things and think things through. Don't be demanding. Ask “how” questions.

C's are slow paced and prefer to focus on the task to get it “right.” They do not like being criticized so always tell them the “why” if you are correcting them. Don't be demanding, disorganized or messy!

Adapting Your Style

What is adaptability? Adaptability is your willingness and ability to adjust your approach or strategy based on the particular needs of the situation and on the person you are relating to at that time. It's something applied more to yourself (to your own patterns, attitudes and habits) than to others.

No one style is naturally more adaptable than another. For any situation, the adjustments that each style needs to make will vary. The decision to employ specific adaptability techniques is made on a case-by-case basis: you can choose to be adaptable with one person, and not so with others. You can choose to be quite adaptable with one person today and less adaptable with that same individual tomorrow.

Adaptability is about the way you manage your own behaviors.

Sometimes we all want to be a different style, and sometimes you have to adapt your style when you are in situations that are NOT suited to your natural DISC style. The questions to ask yourself are, "which style behaviors would you like to own for yourself, when would you use these and for how long?" Remember a behavior comes from a mindset that is shaped by your beliefs and thoughts. Adapting your style takes time and practice?

Yes, not only does adapting your style take time and practice and more practice! It also starts with first having the commitment and desire to want to change and adapt your behavior.

You practice adaptability each time you slow down for the C or S styles; or when you move a bit faster for the D or I styles. It occurs when the D or C styles take the time to build the relationship with S or I styles; or when the I or S styles focus on facts or get right to the point with D or C styles.

It means adjusting your own behavior so that others feel more at ease with you and the situation you are both in.

Adaptability is important to all successful relationships. People often adopt a different style in their social and personal lives. We tend to be more adaptable with people we know less. We tend to be less adaptable at home and with people we know better.

Here are some tips and reflection questions to help you adapt your style:

Tips

1. Notice when and with whom you would like to be different.
2. Remember that you have developed your behavioral patterns over a long period of time based on the interpretation you have made up for yourself. Without really changing the way you think, (often called your Blueprint) you will no doubt revert back to your natural style.
3. Ask for feedback from others and give yourself time.
4. Use the Word Sketch page to choose behaviors that you would like to use and practice these in environments that you feel safe and comfortable in at first.

Reflection Questions

1. What new practice or strategy could you use?

2. What observable behavior and attitude could you use to get your desired result?

3. Who could you team up with that you would like to learn from and imitate, that naturally demonstrates the behavior – what do you see them doing and what do you hear them saying? Notice their energy.

4. What perspectives are you seeing things from?

5. What judgements do you have about yourself and others?

6. Which behaviors do you find the most difficult to use? What limiting belief do you have about yourself? Or about others?

7. What results do you want?

Remember... For things to change first I must change... You can CHOOSE to change!

Modifying Your Directness and Openness

When you are in some interpersonal situations, it is sometimes easier to identify another person's directness OR openness, but not both. In these situations, learn how to practice adaptability, one behavioral dimension at a time. With that in mind, let's look at what you can do to modify YOUR level of Directness or Openness.

DIRECTNESS...

TO INCREASE: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Speak, move and make decisions at a faster pace.• Initiate conversation and decisions.• Give recommendations.• Use direct statements rather than roundabout questions.• Use a strong and confident voice.• Increase your eye contact.• Challenge and tactfully disagree when appropriate.• Face conflict openly, but don't clash with the person.	TO DECREASE: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Talk, walk and make decisions slowly.• Ask for and acknowledge other's opinions.• Share decision-making.• Do not interrupt.• When talking, provide pauses to give others a chance to speak.• When disagreeing choose words carefully.• Refrain from criticizing, challenging or acting too pushy.
--	---

OPENNESS...

TO INCREASE: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Share feelings; show more emotion.• Respond to the expression of other's feelings.• Give others personal compliments.• Use friendly language.• Take time to develop the relationship.• Communicate more; loosen up and stand closer when appropriate.• Be willing to digress from the topic being spoken about.	TO DECREASE: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Get right to the task - give the bottom line.• Maintain more of a logical, factual orientation.• Do not waste the other person's time.• Stay on track.• Be respectful of the other person's personal space.• Downplay your enthusiasm and body movement.
---	---

Collaborating with the DISC Styles

When you are working in a collaborative way you are working together for a common purpose. It is about taking responsibility for supporting others to learn and grow and about the sharing of ideas, information and opinions through formal/informal discussions. Collaboration is NOT the outcome or goal. Collaborations are processes that, when successful, align people’s actions to accomplish a goal or solve a problem. So communication effectiveness is critical when working in a collaborative way.

Use the following tips to help you to adapt your communication style with others – for leading and inspiring and for working more collaboratively together.

Adapt Your Communication Style

Communicating with C’s <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Be well organized and clear in your communications. • Understand that C styles search for logical conclusions. • Ask them for their opinion, as they often stay quiet in a group discussion. • Ask your questions in a more discreet, non-judgmental manner to elicit the points, objectives, or assurances C’s want: “Peter, I’m not trying to pressure you, but are you not interested in joining this team?” 	Communicating with D’s <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Listen to their suggestions, their course of action and the results they are considering. • Find areas where you already agree. • Work backwards toward gaining agreement on the results you both want— and are willing to either mutually or independently allow the other to achieve: “Sarah, this format will give you the freedom to develop this project your way and still allow John and Ellen to structure theirs another way... without sacrificing time or morale.”
Communicating with S’s <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Be ready to do more talking than listening; they don’t feel comfortable when the limelight is focused on them. • Stay organized and move forward steadily (but slowly) as you check to make sure they understand and accept what is being said: <input type="checkbox"/> “Do you want me to leave my cell phone on in case you have any important questions about this project Jodie, or do you want me to call you later?” 	Communicating with I’s <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Listen to their personal feelings and experiences. • Their style requires open and responsive interaction with others, preferably in a manner that is friendly and unhurried (like that between long-time friends): “Just between you and me, Chris, I feel very uneasy about Jill and Howard presenting our team project by themselves.”

Developing Character Virtues

Your Primary DISC style is actually a pattern of behaviors that comes so easily to you that you don't even realize everyone else doesn't have them as well! Your unique strengths make it easy for you to excel in certain activities more than others such as Problems or People or Pace or Procedures.

Here are some examples:

- High D people love telling others what to do when they are in charge of the big picture tasks or Problems to solve.
- High I people seldom take on detailed tasks like their High C friends thrive in.
- High S people do NOT like telling others what to do. They prefer setting up the systems that make life steady, more appealing and easier to function in.
- High C people seem awed by how easily High I's can even talk to strangers and quickly make new friends!

Yet there are times when each of the styles secretly WISH they could be just like someone else. Do you? It is natural to think like this and everyone does sometimes! It just takes one more step in the process of SELF-DISCOVERY, called identifying and practicing the Character Virtues that will give you the results you seek!

You see your DISC behavioral style is how you DO things – those behavioral habits you do automatically – without thinking. And they are observable by others. But if you think about the people you really admire, you'll find that what makes someone popular, successful, and self-confident are the qualities they are BEING – assertive, friendly, patient or diligent.

Initially, these qualities come from what you are taught as your family values and what defines the culture you belong to. But in every culture there are universal Character Virtues that everyone has the capacity to exercise - no matter what behavioral style you now find yourself using most often!

You only need to identify them to practice and strengthen these Virtues in you.

Firstly it is about having the desire to get a different result, then gaining awareness of which virtue you seek, then knowing what language and behaviors to use that relate to it. VOILA! You've just shifted your style – and it no longer "has" you!

Summary

Bottom line, we all have qualities or character virtues within us. They are universal – valued by all cultures. Virtues can be developed with coaching or an awareness and desire to generate more positive responses from others.

The Four DISC Styles Strength Virtues

The following chart shows some of the strength Character Virtues naturally used by the four DISC primary styles. Use it to identify how you would like to behave more often and in which situation.

If you are a High D and would like to become more patient then choose the virtue of patience and practice its behavioral definitions found on the following page. If you are a High I and would like to become more diligent then choose this virtue and practice its behavioral definitions.

Find your highest point in your DISC graph – D, I, S or C. Which Character Virtues would your friends and family say you express naturally? Which do you have to work at expressing? To shift or change a behavior, just choose the virtue's definition and practice it!

DISC Style	D	I	S	C
	Dominance	Influence	Steadiness	Compliance
	Courage	Enthusiasm	Loyalty	Diligence
Strength Characteristic	Assertiveness	Optimism	Patience	Perseverance
	Determination	Trust	Peacefulness	Righteousness
	Confidence	Friendliness	Tolerance	Perceptiveness
	Independence	Generosity	Consideration	Integrity
	Idealism	Cheerfulness	Flexibility	Conscientious

Developing Your Character Virtues Exercise:

1. The highest point on my DISC Natural Graph is: _____
2. From the list of my DISC strength characteristics my friends would say that I naturally express these two character virtues:

3. From the list of the other DISC styles these are the two character virtues that I would like to practice and develop:

Virtue Definitions

As seen in the High “Dominance” Style:

- Courage is embracing life fully without holding back, doing what must be done even when it's difficult or risky.
- Assertiveness is telling the truth about what is just, setting clear boundaries.
- Determination is persevering until we meet our goals and the power of intent that drives our dreams.
- Confidence is a sense of assurance that comes from having faith in ourselves and in life.
- Independence is making our own choices confidently without undue influence from others.
- Idealism is daring to have big dreams and then acting as if they are possible.

As seen in the High “Influence” Style:

- Enthusiasm is acting wholeheartedly with eagerness without holding back.
- Optimism is having a positive and cheerful outlook.
- Trust is positive expectation that all will be well.
- Friendliness is reaching out to others with warmth and caring.
- Generosity is giving and sharing fully and trusting that there is plenty for everyone.
- Cheerfulness is looking for the good in what ever happens and seeing the bright side to life.

As seen in the High “Steadiness” Style:

- Loyalty is unwavering faithfulness and commitment to those that we care about, through good and bad times.
- Patience is waiting peacefully with quiet hope and faith that things will turn out all right.
- Peacefulness is resolving conflict in a just and gentle way. An inner calm and tranquility.
- Tolerance is being open to differences and refraining from judgements.
- Consideration is giving careful thought to the needs of others.
- Flexibility is the ability to adapt and change amid the fluctuating circumstances of life.

As seen in the High Compliance Style

- Diligence is doing what needs to be done with care, concentration and single-pointed attention, giving our best.
- Perseverance is staying the course for however long it takes.
- Righteousness is impeccable integrity to what we know is right.
- Perceptiveness is Clarity of insight and an understanding that is intuitive, insightful and accurate.
- Integrity is keeping faith with our ideals (principles) and our agreements.
- Conscientious is doing one's work or duty thoroughly.

Developing Your Leadership Virtues

Leadership is not only about learning and applying the right skills, it is also about developing leadership qualities (character virtues), and being able to adapt to situations and other people's styles. Being a leader means you will have certain responsibilities; you must know right from wrong and stand up for what you believe in. Sometimes, being a leader, you will need to have the ability to "go against the crowd" - speaking up when you believe that something is wrong.

An outstanding leader is able to demonstrate the virtues of Trust, Diligence, Assertiveness and Confidence. They can handle conflict situations, have the ability to confidently influence others in a positive way and can apply reasoning skills for making the right decision at the right time.

Use the following table to identify your limiting behaviors and for developing the Leadership virtue that relates to your DISC style.

Style	Limiting Behavior	Quality (virtue)	Quality Definition
High D	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> At times you do not exercise caution and deliberation before you make decisions. You often choose not to tell others the reasons for your decisions. At times you have difficulty expressing or responding to emotions. At times you do not recognize or solicit other's contributions. 	Trust	Trust – Is positive expectation that all will be well. It is having confidence that the right thing will happen without having to control it or make it happen.
High I	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Not viewing people and tasks more objectively. Not seeing tasks through to the end. Being sarcastic and superficial when you are under stress. Not following through on your agreements. 	Diligence	Diligence – Doing what needs to be done with care, concentration and single-pointed attention, giving our absolute best.
High S	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> You do not speak up and voice your thoughts and feelings at times. At times you automatically do what others tell you to do. You can become irritated when others are insensitive and impatient. You tend to not be open to some risks and changes. 	Assertiveness	Assertiveness – Telling the truth about what is just, setting clear boundaries. You have the self-confidence to tell the truth about what is just.
High C	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> You become withdrawn and headstrong when you are under stress. You view people and tasks too seriously and critically sometimes. Sometimes you do not shoot for realistic deadlines and parameters. You can become irritated when things are disorganized. 	Friendliness	Friendliness – Is reaching out to others with warmth and caring and caring is about listening with compassion.

Developing Your Optimism

We live in a world of uncertainty and change. Many things are beyond our control. How you manage and succeed when there is not a lot of agreement will depend on the way you think about life situations. When you have Optimism, you instinctively think positively. You see a glass 'half full' rather than 'half empty'. When you can only think of the glass as half empty, you are thinking with Pessimism.

Pessimistic people tend to believe bad events will last a long time and that it is their fault. Optimistic people experience the same bad event and think about it differently. They tend to believe that it is just a temporary setback or obstacle and that its reasons only apply to this event, and that it is NOT their fault. Are you a pessimist or optimist?

How do you react to challenging situations?

Adversity is a word that is used when we find something hard to do or when we are in certain environments or situations and feel unsafe or afraid. When you encounter adversity you react by thinking about it. From thinking about it you then make a decision about other people, the situation, the environment or about yourself. These decisions then become your beliefs. And beliefs are the thoughts you have and what you believe to be true. They are your points of view about what you experience in life.

What do the DISC styles think about the environment?

In the DISC model High D and C styles view his or her environment as unfavorable and therefore they tend to respond in a defensive way; seeing the glass half empty. Whereas the High S and I styles view their environment as favorable and tend to respond in a more open and accepting manner; seeing the glass as half full. Sometimes how you see the glass can become a habit.

How are habits formed?

Beliefs can become habits and you don't even realize you have them unless you stop and focus on them! And they just don't sit there doing nothing; they have consequences! Beliefs are direct causes of what you feel and what you do next. Certain kinds of beliefs set off the "giving up" response, or a feeling of helplessness.

Example - Glass half-EMPTY

Adversity - My teacher Mr. Smith yelled at me in front of the whole class and everybody laughed.
Pessimistic Belief – He doesn't like me very much and the whole class thinks I'm an idiot.
Consequence – I felt really sad and I wished that I could just disappear under my desk.

Example - Glass half-FULL

Adversity – My teacher Mr. Smith yelled at me in front of the whole class and everybody laughed.
Optimistic Belief – The whole class knows Mr. Smith is often unfair!
Consequence – I went back to reading my book.

How do I change?

You can deal with your pessimistic beliefs only once you become aware of them. The first way is to distract yourself from thinking about them, by thinking of something else. The second way is to dispute them, or debate with yourself about them. This way is more effective because successfully disputed beliefs are less likely to repeat themselves as patterns, when the same event occurs.

Distracting yourself

To interrupt a habitual pessimistic thought pattern, there are a couple of strategies you can use. You can write down affirmations (a supportive statement usually starting with “I am”) on 3x5 cards or even write down the word STOP, and place these where you can see them. You can place a rubber band on your wrist and then by simply pulling and letting it snap back, it will quickly remind you to think another way and to debate each pessimistic thought.

Debating with yourself

As we have mentioned, disputing or debating with yourself is a more effective way to change a pessimistic thought pattern. It’s a little bit like arguing with yourself and coming up with an alternative thought. By using this approach with beliefs that follow adversity, you can change the pattern. See the examples on the previous page.

How do I debate with myself?

There are four important ways to debate with yourself:

1. Look for the evidence or proof – look for the facts.
2. Ask yourself what are the alternatives, by using the “how” word. Or saying to yourself “that’s one way of looking at it, what’s another way”?
3. Ask yourself what are the implications or consequences to this belief?
4. Ask yourself how useful is it?

Become aware, listen and practice

Next time you find yourself facing adversity or you experience a bad event practice debating with yourself to change your thought pattern from pessimism to optimism. Listen closely to what you are saying to yourself about the situation and become aware of the belief. Then think about the consequence and argue with yourself vigorously and see what happens to the way you feel.

Keep a journal of your pessimistic belief patterns to see just how many you have, how many you have permanently changed and the ones you still have to practice on.

Developing Optimism in the Four DISC Styles

Use the following table to notice how the DISC four primary styles typically think. Which one can you relate to? What alternative thoughts or shift in thinking could you use and what virtues can you practice to develop a more optimistic approach. Use the virtue definitions on Page 20 to know how to practice a particular virtue that relates to your DISC style.

DISC Style	Fears	Belief	Alternative Thought	Virtues to Add
High D	Being taken advantage of/lack of control	I have to be demanding to stay in control	What evidence/fact is there that I am losing control?	Tolerance and Flexibility
High I	Being left out, loss of social approval	When I am emotional and persuasive people won't leave me out	What is the evidence that I am being left out?	Perceptiveness and Patience
High S	Sudden change/loss of stability/security	I must stay calm and have everything organized so nothing goes wrong or upsets us	What if I asked everyone to think of alternative solutions in case of an emergency?	Confidence and Assertiveness
High C	Being criticized/loss of accuracy/quality	I must be precise and accurate so people will not criticize me	If I make a mistake I can apologize and move on. Doesn't everyone make mistakes?	Trust and Friendliness

Developing Optimism Exercise:

1. My alternative thoughts or shifts in thinking are:

2. The virtues I will use and practice for developing a more optimistic approach are:

3. These are the following behaviors I will use when practicing my chosen virtues:

4. This is the language people will hear when I am practicing my chosen virtues:

Reference Materials

Character Virtues Definitions

The Virtues Project™ is a global grassroots initiative to inspire the practice of virtues in everyday life, sparking a global revolution of kindness, justice, and integrity in more than 100 countries through Facilitators, Master Facilitators, Champions and Virtues Connections.

The Virtues Project empowers individuals to live more authentic meaningful lives, families to raise children of compassion and integrity, educators to create safe, caring, and high performing learning communities, and leaders to encourage excellence and ethics in the work place. It has inspired and mobilized people worldwide to commit acts of service and generosity, to heal violence with virtues.

The Five Strategies™ awaken the gifts of character, through inspiring programs, books, and materials that help us to remember who we really are and to live by our highest values.

Linda Kavelin-Popov, Dr. Dan Popov and John Kavelin founded the Virtues Project in Canada in 1991. It was honored by the United Nations during the International Year of the Family as a "model global program for families of all cultures". Learn more at:

<http://www.virtuesproject.com/tvp.html>

“Learned Optimism” – a book by Martin Seligman

In this book, Martin E.P. Seligman, pioneer of Positive Psychology, outlines easy-to-follow techniques that have helped thousands rise above pessimism. Learn more on his site at:

<http://www.pursuit-of-happiness.org/history-of-happiness/martin-seligman-positive-psychology/>

Resources

Feel free to explore the following sites for additional PeopleSmart tools and self-discovery resources:

<http://www.PeopleSmartWorld.com>

<http://www.PeopleSmartEnterprises.com>

<http://www.DISCforKids.com>

Congratulations for taking this step towards understanding yourself and others better. This is only the tip of the iceberg in terms of the resources we have for you so, we would like to include you in occasional email invitations and newsletters. If you prefer not to receive these, or if your email changes, please email details to:

Info@PeopleSmartEnterprises.com

Disclaimer

There are no warranties, express or implied, regarding the online DISCstyles assessment. You assume full responsibility, and Alessandra & Associates, Inc., Assessment Business Center, Platinum Rule Group, LLC and Dr. Tony Alessandra (THE GROUP) shall not be liable for, (i) your use and application of The DISCstyles Assessment, (ii) the adequacy, accuracy, interpretation or usefulness of The DISCstyles Assessment, and (iii) the results or information developed from your use or application of any versions of The DISCstyles Assessment.

You waive any claim or rights of recourse on account of claims against THE GROUP either in your own right or on account of claims against THE GROUP by third parties. You shall indemnify and hold THE GROUP harmless against any claims, liabilities, demands or suits of third parties.

The foregoing waiver and indemnity shall apply to any claims, rights of recourse, liability, demand or suit for personal injury, property damage, or any other damage, loss or liability, directly or indirectly arising out of, resulting from or in any way connected with The DISCstyles Assessment, or the use, application, adequacy, accuracy, interpretation, usefulness, or management of The DISCstyles Assessment, or the results or information developed from any use or application of The DISCstyles Assessment, and whether based on contract obligation, tort liability (including negligence) or otherwise.

In no event, will THE GROUP be liable for any lost profits or other consequential damages, or for any claim against you by a third party, even if one or more of THE GROUP has been advised of the possibility of such damages.